

BRITAIN AT WAR : MAKING MUNITIONS

THE HOWITZER SHOP. By MUIRHEAD BONE.

Howitzers of various calibres are in the background ; in the foreground, guns of lighter types. Guns are like ships ; each piece seems endowed with a personality which endears it to its creators. The soldiers to whose keeping they are sent feel a similar tenderness towards their own special charge. They express it by giving them fond names like "Saucy Sue," "Sweet Seventeen," "Jill Johnson," "Our Lizzie," and "Ria." (From "The Western Front,")

POST CARD.

THIS SPACE FOR CORRESPONDENCE.

ADDRESS TO BE WRITTEN HERE.